

A B S T R A C T

A display device containing a poster which is provided with an optically transparent window, and an
5 image-presenting device which presents an internal display that can be seen through the window in the poster. A geometrical parameter selected from the position of the internal display relative to the poster, the shape of the internal display, and the size of the 10 internal display is adjusted so that the internal display is in register with the window in the poster being presented.